

The Graphic's Own SOCIETY COLUMN

No. 5

Alice Bowker

Six smiling clicks from the movie man's sixteen-second film made recently atop Hotel Plaza, of Miss Alice Bowker, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Bowker, of Hewlett, L. I., who will take part in society's presentation of "Zero," which will be given all this week at the Forty-fourth Street Theater for the benefit of the Dug-Out and the Veterans' Mountain Camp.

Movie by Jack Russman

"Bobbed hair may have

"its advantages, but not with

"out a hat on a windy roof

"Maybe it's that famous old

"ill wind. If so, it's surely

"blowing me good."

THE WORLD'S TALLEST MAN. Glenn Ryder visits the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, at Springfield, Ill., where he poses for a comparison snap with the great monument's custodian. Glenn is 9 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 323 pounds. He is but nineteen and has three years more in which to reach his full stature. Here are some of the specifications of this elongated youth from Dallas—17 shoe, 12 glove, 7 1/2 hat, 16 collar, 36 waist and 44-inch chest.

International

Left—"JOHN L. SULLIVAN," not of prizefighting fame, but of the sawdust ring—forty-year-old veteran of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey herd of trick elephants, obediently waits for the traffic signal at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street before crossing the crowded thoroughfare on the first stage of his 53-mile hike to Somers, N. Y., the birthplace of the American circus, where he will pay tribute at the grave of "Bet," the first pachyderm to be brought to this country.

Keystone

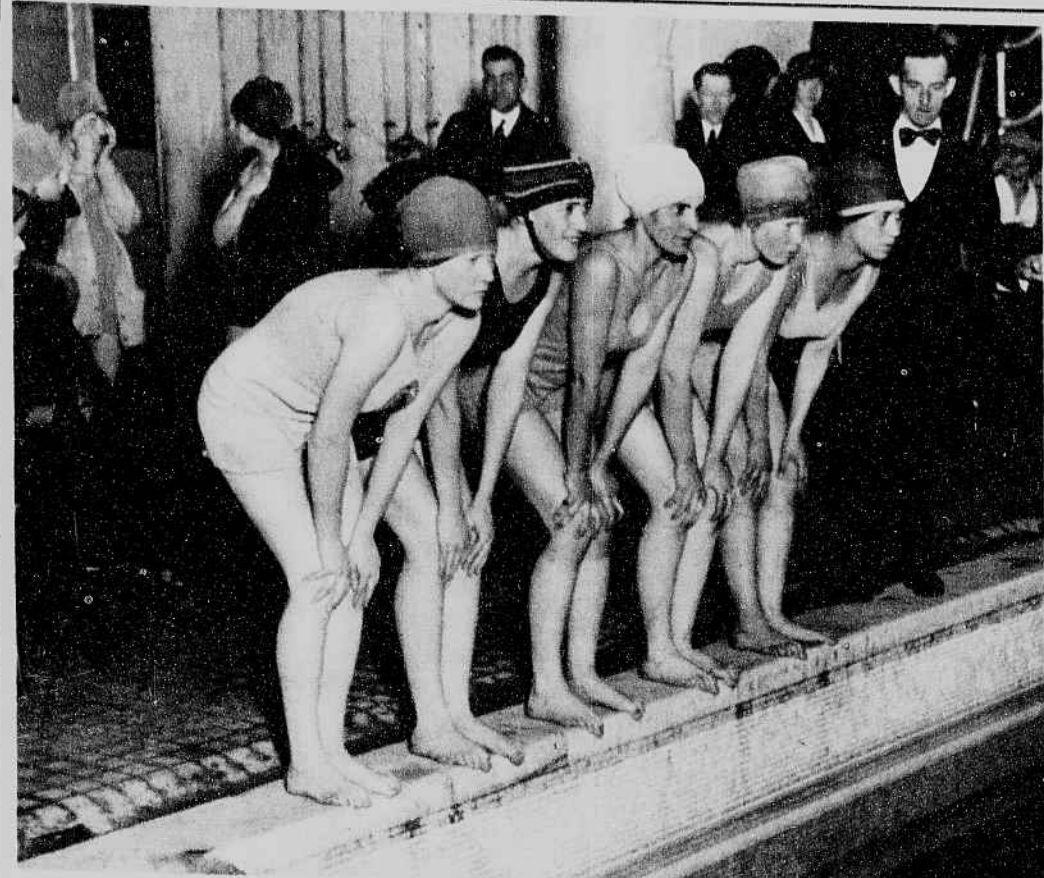

A SIX-YEAR-OLD AMAZON. The world's youngest broncho buster is clever little Joan Elmer Woodbury, of San Francisco, pictured here astride her favorite pinto. Joan, who performs for the movies, proudly boasts of a 100 per cent score for physical perfection.

Keystone

HIS BIRTHDAY BIKE. Stanley Bruce, of Oakland, Calif., the proud owner of a thirty-five-year-old bicycle, presented to him on his last birthday by his grandfather. The all-wood model, made from odd bits of old material found around his granddad's blacksmith shop, has traveled over 10,000 miles, with never a puncture, and is still going strong.

Underwood

A MERMAID QUINTET, the varsity swimming team of Hunter College as they lined up on the edge of the pool at the West Sixtieth Street Baths a week ago Friday for their first appearance in a competitive meet. From left to right the fair aquatic misses are Dorothy Wilde, Laura Winberg, Suzanna Kellogg, Helen Donohue and Dorothy Hall.

Keystone

Right—JOHN D. JR. IN PALM SUNDAY REGALIA. John D. Rockefeller Jr. attends the first services held at the new Park Avenue Baptist Church, the basement of which houses the new home of his famous Bible class. The son of the oil king appeared under an escort of detectives and policemen, furnished by the trustees, as a protection against possible cranks in the Palm Sunday throng. The only cranks to interfere with Mr. Rockefeller's morning, however, were those turned by the movie men.

Keystone

Left—TERPSICHOREAN TROUSERETTES. Leonora Hughes, pretty dancing partner of Maurice, whose frocks have ever been the envy of New York society's smart dressers, pictured here wearing her latest conceit for the ballroom, an appealing creation which incorporates a slit skirt and filmy lace trouserettes.

Keystone

Right—BUFFALO VEAL. The sprawly-legged individual of our ship news snap is a buffalo calf born at sea aboard the S. S. Bayern, a German ship which recently arrived in New York with the largest cargo of wild animals since the war.

Underwood

HER BEDTIME STORY. The radio craze grows apace! Baby daughter climbs atop the table in her Long Island home, fastens the receivers to her ear, and, with thousands of other kiddies all over the East whose family-wireless is in tune with the Newark broad-casting station, picks her bedtime story out of the air.

Paul Thompson

